

Each person describes what they see in the sky,
out loud or to themselves,
softly,
unsynchronized,
at multiple points,
repeatedly anew.

a pulse
a tone
a noise

Each person has an object able to create one of three sounds while lying on the ground:

for Jon Paden

In a quiet place outdoors,
people gather together,
lying flat on the ground,
staring at the sky:

Bodies are arranged in an irregular manner,
rather close,
possibly touching or not.

Spoken words and/or sounds may overlap, but often occur on their own surrounded by silence, each person spending most of their time looking, listening, thinking and dreaming.

Heads in the Clouds

Each person creates a sustained sound with their object,
softly,
unsynchronized,
at any point,
once.

Robert Blatt, 2016